Work in Progress

- "Don't Do Difference In Differences" (with Susan Athey, Guido Imbens, Yiqing Xu, and Xuelin Yang). Re-examines how difference-in-differences and two-way fixed effects designs are used in applied research. We assemble a corpus of more than 2,000 DID applications published in leading economics and political science journals since 2010, use an LLM-assisted pipeline to classify them and replicate a subset at scale, and develop new diagnostic tests for when the two-way fixed effects specification fails
- "Job Search and Career Choice in the Age of AI: Evidence from a University Job Platform" (with Xiqian Cai, Ying Fang, Yi Lu, and Basit Zafar). Uses a purpose-built job search platform for graduating students (`https://xmujob.com`) to study how students search for jobs and how AI shapes their career choices. The platform has been built and launched under a signed agreement with Xiamen University, with institutional support from the university's student affairs, career services, and academic affairs offices; part of the NSFC Major Program project "Labor Market Theory and Micro-Structural Econometrics in the Age of Artificial Intelligence" (PI: Ying Fang, Xiamen University)

- "Uninsured Ground: Land Subsidence and House Prices in California" (with Ting Chen and Chang Liu). Studies how housing and mortgage markets price a natural hazard that formal institutions ignore: land subsidence from groundwater overdraft, which is excluded from homeowners insurance, hazard disclosure, and lending standards. We match parcel-level home sales in California's San Joaquin Valley to satellite-measured ground displacement. Preliminary draft completed

Research Grants

- Co-Principal Investigator (PI: Yiqing Xu), "AI Reproducibility", Stanford Impact Labs, Fast Grants for AI-Enabled Research ("Social Science, Supercharged"), Stanford University, US$50,000, 2026 - 2027

Research Infrastructure and Knowledge Transfer

- ReproAI (`https://reproai.org`): an open infrastructure for certifying the computational reproducibility of published research, so that any reader can verify a replication package in seconds without rerunning it. Developed with Gary King (Harvard) and Yiqing Xu (Stanford), and now being integrated, in collaboration with the Dataverse team, into Dataverse, the open-source repository platform developed at Harvard's IQSS (about 150 installations worldwide). Its flagship installation, Harvard Dataverse, hosts the official replication archives of journals such as the Quarterly Journal of Economics, the Journal of Political Economy, the Review of Economics and Statistics, the Review of Financial Studies, the American Political Science Review, and the American Journal of Political Science. Supported by a Stanford Impact Labs Fast Grant for AI-Enabled Research
- China Modern Gazetteer Full-Text Database: full-text database of post-1949 Chinese county and city gazetteers, licensed to Stanford University, the University of Minnesota, the University of California, Berkeley, and the University of Michigan
- Chinese Job Market Tracker: a public dashboard monitoring labor market dynamics from online job postings
